Course Description Changes
• Computer Programming for Lawyers: Intermediate with Dean Ohm: THIS COURSE REQUESTS PROFESSOR PERMISSION TO ENROLL. Interested students should contact Professor Ohm at (ohm@law.georgetown.edu) by Thursday, July 15, 2021.
• Constitutional Impact Litigation Practicum (Project-Based Practicum) with Professors McCord and Marshall: THIS COURSE REQUESTS PROFESSOR PERMISSION TO ENROLL. Interested students should submit a résumé and written statement (maximum of 300 words), articulating their interest in the practicum and noting any relevant academic and work experiences, especially in the field of constitutional law, to Professor Mary McCord (mm7@georgetown.edu) and Senior Lecturer Amy Marshall (as3397@georgetown.edu). Students will be admitted on a rolling basis until all seats are filled, after which students will be placed on a waiting list.
• Financial Services: Regulation in the Age of Disruption with Professors Baer and Navarrete: This two-hour lecture and discussion course covers regulation of financial services providers, from traditional banks to fintechs, cryptocurrencies, stablecoins and other challengers. The course provides a grounding in how banks are structured and regulated: the balance sheet, the role of insured deposits, and the purpose of capital and liquidity. We review regulations designed to promote safety and soundness, privacy and cybersecurity, consumer protection, and international consistency. We then examine how fintechs, cryptocurrencies, stablecoins and money market funds all attempt to disintermediate traditional banks, and the regulatory challenges they pose. We examine the 2007-09 Global Financial Crisis and the economic effects of the 2020 global pandemic, and the lessons learned from each. Grades in this course are determined by class participation and a final take-home examination.
• Street Law: Criminal Justice and Human Rights (Project-Based Practicum) with Professor Howell: There is a four-day interactive orientation from 9:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., August 23-26 where law students will experience the student-centered teaching methodology they will use in their own classes.
