

LL.M/MASTER OF PUBLIC HEALTH (JOHNS HOPKINS)

Students in this program spend their first year in residence at Johns Hopkins School of Public Health completing the Masters of Public Health (<https://publichealth.jhu.edu/academics/mph/program-options/>) (M.P.H.) component of the joint degree program. The second year is spent at Georgetown completing the LL.M. in National and Global Health Law (<https://curriculum.law.georgetown.edu/llm/llm-llm-programs/llm-global-health-law/>), which satisfies the remainder of the M.P.H. degree requirements as well.
