

S.J.D. DEGREE

We are currently not accepting applications for the S.J.D. degree program for the 2026-27 academic year.

Georgetown's S.J.D. Program is exceptional; it is the highest degree Georgetown Law offers. This program gives students a unique opportunity to benefit from the world's largest law curriculum and the extraordinary faculty who teach it, while doing so in a personalized environment designed to respond to the specific needs of S.J.D. students. S.J.D. students have unparalleled access to resources by virtue of studying in Washington, D.C., the capital of the United States and home to major international organizations. S.J.D. students are an integral part of the law school community and are invited to participate in its rich academic and social life.

The S.J.D. Program is intentionally small to enable students to receive individualized attention and to cultivate a close community of scholars for enrichment and ongoing support. Admission is contingent on the availability of a full-time faculty member to serve as supervisor for the dissertation. There is no limit to the topics that students may consider as long as they are original, able to contribute to the production of new legal knowledge, and pursued with academic rigor.

All students in residence take the 8-credit S.J.D. Core Curriculum (<https://curriculum.law.georgetown.edu/course-search/?keyword=LAW%202017%20v01>) each semester, consisting of a 3-credit S.J.D. Seminar (<https://curriculum.law.georgetown.edu/course-search/?keyword=LAW%202048%20v00>), 3-credit S.J.D. Colloquium (<https://curriculum.law.georgetown.edu/course-search/?keyword=LAW%202017%20v00>), a 2-credit Reading Course, and the Fellows Collaborative. In addition to the S.J.D. Core Curriculum, first year students take a 2-credit course in the fall, Presentation Skills for Academics (<https://curriculum.law.georgetown.edu/course-search/?keyword=LAW%202081%20v00>). First year students are also required to take a 3-credit writing course which may be from either the J.D. or LL.M. curriculum.

Contact Information

To learn more, please contact:

Office of Graduate Admissions

Email Address: Office of Graduate Admissions (<https://www.law.georgetown.edu/admissions-aid/graduate-admissions/>)

Search LL.M SJD Schedule Courses (https://curriculum.law.georgetown.edu/course-search/?program=program_95)

LAW 2081 v00 Presentation Skills for Academics (https://curriculum.law.georgetown.edu/course-search/?keyword=LAW 2081 v00)

LL.M. Seminar | 2 credit hours

First year S.J.D. students receive training in oral presentations and practice their skills in moot sessions for the Mid-Atlantic S.J.D. Roundtable at the end of the fall semester.

Upon completion of this course, students will have a greater understanding of and enhanced professional skill in creating and presenting listenable research and instructional presentations.

Note: This course is limited to S.J.D. students and requires departmental approval.

LAW 3178 v00 S.J.D. and Fellows Seminar (https://curriculum.law.georgetown.edu/course-search/?keyword=LAW 3178 v00)

LL.M. Seminar | 0 credit hours

The S.J.D./Fellows Seminar is intended to provide our graduate students and fellows who hope to enter the legal academy with a shared body of knowledge regarding jurisprudence, legal theory, and interdisciplinary movements in law, as well as a place to "workshop" their works in progress. The Seminar alternates between "workshop" meetings, in which graduate students and fellows may present their work in progress to the group and invited faculty members and receive critical feedback, and "seminar" meetings.

Note: This seminar is not open to LL.M. or J.D. students. The seminar/workshop is required for all first and second year SJD students. All other SJD students, clinical, research and institute fellows are invited and encouraged to attend. The seminar is also open to PhD students in residence at GULC, visiting scholars and researchers, graduates in the area, and white house and supreme court fellows.

LAW 2017 v01 S.J.D. Core Curriculum (https://curriculum.law.georgetown.edu/course-search/?keyword=LAW 2017 v01)

LL.M. Seminar | 8 credit hours

The S.J.D. Core Curriculum is for all students in residence and consists of four components: the S.J.D. Colloquium, the S.J.D. Seminar, Supervised or Independent Reading, and the S.J.D. and Fellows Seminar.

The S.J.D. Colloquium meets weekly, focusing on different themes each semester. These may include American Legal theory, Law and Society, Comparative Law, Law and Development, and other topics of special interest to S.J.D. students. Leading scholars in these fields teach segments from time to time.

The S.J.D. Workshop meets weekly to discuss students' work in progress. Students present one or two times a year during which their faculty supervisors are encouraged to attend. The goal is to improve the quality of their work in a collaborative and supportive environment. NOTE: During their fall semester, 1st year students take S.J.D. Methods in lieu of the S.J.D. Workshop.

S.J.D. Methods meets weekly in the fall semester for 1st year students in lieu of the S.J.D. Workshop. Students refine their dissertation topics, write their thesis statements, prepare for the National S.J.D. Roundtable, and learn writing strategies.

In Supervised or Independent Reading, students develop reading lists with their faculty supervisors to focus on particular research areas for their dissertations. In their first year, students engage in Supervised Reading with someone on the faculty, not necessarily their supervisor. Students take Independent Reading starting their second year.

The S.J.D. and Fellows Seminar meets weekly, alternating between seminar meetings and workshop meetings. The seminar covers one topic per semester over a two-year cycle: Law and Social Sciences, Law and Humanities, American Legal Theory, and Contemporary Legal Scholarship. The workshop is primarily designed for those actively on the "academic market" to present works in progress for feedback.

The S.J.D. Core Curriculum is limited to S.J.D. students and requires departmental approval.

LAW 2048 v00 S.J.D. Seminar (<https://curriculum.law.georgetown.edu/course-search/?keyword=LAW 2048 v00>)

LL.M. Seminar | 3 credit hours

The S.J.D. Seminars are small group classes consisting of 6-8 students. Each seminar group meets weekly to discuss students' work in progress. Students present their work two times a semester on a rotating basis. The goal is to improve the quality of their work in a collaborative and supportive environment.

Note: This course is limited to S.J.D. students and requires departmental approval.